

Boys In Overalls Girls In Calico

Normal students Go After the Post of Clothing Problem in a Vigorous and Very Practical Manner.

When it comes to putting the clothes on a half-Nelson on Old Man H. C. L., the students of the Southeastern State Normal at Durant have the problem grappled and their opponent fished to the mast at least for the present.

And notes how they are doing it:

The boys are wearing overalls, and the girls calico, and as an evidence that the movement is not a sporadic or ephemeral one is the fact that today in the Normal class rooms are one hundred boys and one hundred girls thus economically attired with the promise to continue in such costume until at least the first of December.

Ross Quincy, president of the juniors, is at the head of the organization of students who are thus combating high prices for wearing apparel, and he says his followers are enthusiastic and sure to follow the program out to the letter.

President Bennett of the normal views the movement from a broad minded standpoint and feels somewhat elated that so many of his students have the nerve to do the stunt. The movement, however, is so general that there is little likelihood of ridicule having any effect on the participants.

The young folks are being generally congratulated on the stand for economy—even by some of the merchants who are losing a little business because of the new order of things.

METHODISTS TO PAY OFF $7,000.00 CHURCH DEBT

The First Methodist Church of this city has made plans for the liquidation of the church debt, amounting at this time to about $7,000.00. Up to noon on Thursday, more than $5,000.00 of the amount had been subscribed. The committee that is in charge of the matter includes Messrs. Green, Thompson, W. F. Pendleton, O. R. Salmon, A. P. Russell, and V. B. Hays.

Saturday the committee got busy again and succeeded in getting the total amount necessary to cancel all indebtedness. At the church Sunday, there was a mortgage-burning and the evidences of former debt went up in smoke, much to the delight of the big congregation present.

BENNINGTON LADIES AFTER GAMBLING

"If you men folks can't stop gambling, we are going to even if we women have to register and defeat every old officer to do it."

The Bennington Tribune

says this is what the ladies of that place are promising to do unless the officials quit accepting fine after fine for gambling and failing to impose jail sentences which the ladies esteem as the proper dope to abate the evil.

It would seem that the ladies of Bennington are considerably worked up over the situation, and say so in no uncertain tones. What the gambler is taking they say some of the wives and children are very much in need of.

SOME SNAKE

Last Saturday morning A. G. Marvel, who lives near the City's South Side Park, was considerably surprised on finding one of the former denizens of the park's zoo lying dead within a hundred feet of his home. Deceased was a big diamond back-rattler, measuring 5 feet 11½ inches long without his rattles, which had been detached by its slayer. The reptile was of that size which might have sported twenty or twenty five rattles. Mr. Marvel believes the council should have keepers of the zoo look after the animals more diligently, for the neighborhood would be a dangerous one should they get to going about without a chaperon.

The Austrians say they are without money or food and that if assistance is not extended by the allies the remnant of the empire will be forced to tie itself with Germany.

FIGHTING AGAINST VENEREAL DISEASES

Great improvement is shown in the campaign against social diseases in Oklahoma according to reports being received by the U. S. Public Health Service. Physicians of fifty counties of the state are making reports showing that in twenty-seven counties there is no venereal disease to report. Either that, or the physicians in these counties are failing to obey the law requiring reports of all the venereal disease cases. During September, 719 cases were reported, which includes the number treated at the 12 free clinics. Oklahoma City had the greatest number of cases, 398, with Tulsa County second with 255 cases and Ottawa third, 75 cases. Two cases were reported from Bryan County. From a bulletin issued by Dr. J. C. Mahr of the U. S. Public Health Service.

GINNERS TO WEIGH SEED

The following extract from Corporation Commission order No. 1584, with reference to rates and practices of cotton gins, will relieve an apparent misunderstanding upon the part of many cotton growers:

"The Commission finds that while it would work an unjustifiable hardship on many ginners to require seed scales at this time, yet when the ginners and grower are unable to agree upon an estimate of amount of seed in any instance, the burden shall devolve upon the ginners to catch and weigh the seed."

MISTAKEN FOR PROWLER

When Circuit Judge Paul Little of Ft. Smith, Arkansas, one of the best known jurists of that section, went to awaken his sonographer, Mr. Williams, on official business last Saturday night, he was mistaken for a prowler by Williams. The court steno also let loose a shotgun loaded with birdshot and part of the Judge's lower jaw was carried away. The wounded man has but a fighting chance to live.
